Suffering from information overload?

Learn to use information effectively in your academic studies, in the workplace, and in your personal life.

New Course begins fall semester 2008

INFL 1901 Information Literacy (1 Credit)

Fridays, October 20 - December 14, 2008 (8 weeks), 10 a.m. - noon

This course introduces the information skills necessary for professional and personal success in the rapidly changing electronic environment.

- Understand the volatile Internet environment
- Learn search strategies for fast access to quality information
- Judge the Internet’s best from the rest
- Find sources for any need: market analysis, statistical data, health information, product comparisons, college research, etc.
- Students: work on research assignments for other classes and get credit

Register Now!

Lakeland Community College

www.lakelandcc.edu • 1.800.589.8520